

NATIONAL RESOURCE DIRECTORY

Providing access to thousands of services and resources at the national, state and local levels to support recovery, rehabilitation and reintegration

About the National Resource Directory (NRD)

The National Resource Directory (www.NRD.gov) is a federal government website that connects wounded, ill and injured Service members, veterans, families, and caregivers to thousands of services and programs at the national, state and local levels to support them during recovery, rehabilitation and reintegration. Visitors to the site will find information on topics such as post-traumatic stress disorder, military and veterans' benefits, health care, educational opportunities, homeless assistance, employment and more.

Who Operates NRD

NRD is a tri-agency initiative among the Departments of Defense, Labor and Veterans Affairs. It contains information from federal, state and local government agencies; Veterans service organizations; non-profit, faith-based and community organizations; academic institutions, and professional associations that provide services and assistance to support the military and Veteran communities.

Why Was NRD Created

The NRD was created as a result of an increased focus within the federal government to improve wounded, ill and injured, veteran, and family care coordination by providing centralized access to information on related services.

It provides a central place online to obtain comprehensive and up-to-date information about the services and programs available nationally and in the communities where wounded, ill and injured Service members, their families and their caregivers live and work.

As a critical part of this commitment, the NRD is continuously adapting and seeking the most current and highest quality resources available to support those who have served.
